The Twist Eco Hot List returns, bringing you the latest environmentally friendly travel news from around the globe!

ROAD-TESTING ECO-ALTERNATIVES IN SWITZERLAND

Our eco destination prize this issue goes to...scenic Switzerland! Not only are Swiss citizens world champions when it comes to recycling, but they've also taken a green approach to the resurfacing of their road junctions in Zermatt, using waste plastic that would otherwise have gone to landfill in the asphalt: zermatt.ch/en

FOOD RECYCLING JUST GOT FUN!

At Country Kids, a luxury farm-stay in the South of France, kids learn about food recycling by getting very hands-on. Each family is given a bucket to collect their leftovers, which the children then feed to the resident animals on their daily farm visit, where they also collect hen's eggs: country-kids.fr

KEEPING IT LOCAL IN LAKE CONSTANCE

Lake Constance in Europe boasts not one, but two restaurants featuring '0-kilometer' menus. Both The Ittingen Charterhouse restaurant, built in a former monastery, and The Schloss Wartegg Hotel restaurant, use produce from their onsite gardens and fish from the local waters, to help the region's CO2 reduction: lake-constance.com

THE WORLD'S FIRST CORK-CLAD HOTEL

The Tivoli Evora Ecoresort resort has found an inventive way to sustainably insulate their chic hotel, by cladding the entire main building in cork - a material found locally in abundance. The cork finish has been a great success, allowing for effective thermal and acoustic insulation, plus it looks pretty chic: tivolihotels.com

BREEDING THE CONSERVATIONISTS OF TOMORROW

Wilderness Safaris are trailblazers in African ecotourism and they've now added the Bush Buddies programme to their family-friendly offerings. Kids are teamed up with a mentor who teaches them about the local environment through fun and educational activities. And amazingly, this bespoke service is complimentary for families: wilderness-safaris.com
